

ment at Poonindie was in great danger to-day, the fires have burnt right into the township, consuming a good deal of Mr. H. D. Murray's fence, and the fences of the several small allotments near his place. Nearly the whole of Mr. H. J. Smith's and Mr. Telford's runs have been burnt, and other stockholders have all suffered more or less. On the night of the 25th January, large fire was seen at sea, in the direction of the Eyre Peninsula, supposed to be on them, as the glare and reflection were too great to have been occasioned by a ship on fire.—Correspondent to the Adelaide Times.
